Guidelines on the Publication of Doctoral Theses

September 5, 2013

1. Purpose of these Guidelines

These guidelines outline the matters to be aware of in advance in the event that the Department Committee judges there to be a compelling reason for publishing a summary form of the thesis on the Internet instead of the full thesis. These matters are based on the Degree Regulations of the Graduate University for Advanced Studies (hereunder referred to as “Degree Regulations”) and The Procedure of the Submission, Storage and Publication of Doctoral Theses and Master’s Theses (hereunder, “the Procedure”).

2. Abridged version (Outline) of your Doctoral Thesis

An abridged version (outline) of your doctoral thesis as prescribed in Paragraph 2, Article 21 of the Degree Regulations refers to text material of a certain volume containing a layout of the issues to be addressed, methodologies, tests, analyses, discussions, conclusions, and others.

3. Prior Confirmation for the Publication of an Abridged version (Outline) of your Doctoral Thesis on the Internet instead of the Full Thesis

An abridged version (outline) of your doctoral thesis may be published on the Internet instead of the full thesis in accordance with Paragraph 2, Article 21 of the Degree Regulations, if any of the following reasons apply. Those hoping to obtain a doctorate should be aware of these matters.

- i. The thesis contains content such as three-dimensional tables or figures that cannot be published on the Internet.
- ii. The thesis cannot be published on the Internet because of issues of copyright protection, personal information protection, or of the social impact its publication would have.
- iii. The graduate has agreed to publish his/her thesis in an academic journal or other platform that prohibits multiple publication such that he/she would be clearly put at a disadvantage if his/her full thesis is published on the Internet.
- iv. In view of publication, the graduate would be clearly put at a disadvantage if his/her full doctoral thesis is published on the Internet
- v. If the graduate is applying for a patent or other rights, he/she would be clearly put at a disadvantage if his/her full thesis is published on the Internet. However, under Japan’s patent system, patents cannot in principle be granted for inventions released prior to the patent application.
- vi. The Department Committee judges there to be a compelling reason.

4. Approval of the Reason for Publishing an Abridged version (Outline) of your Doctoral Thesis instead of the Full Thesis

In case the graduate who has been awarded a doctoral degree requests a summary form of his/her doctoral thesis to be published on the Internet instead of the full thesis, the Department Committee shall, in accordance with Paragraph 2, Article 21 of the Degree Regulations, and Paragraph 3, Article 3 of the Procedure, undertake a careful consideration of the validity of the request in relation to the aforementioned circumstances i, ii, iii, iv, and v.

5. Consent for Publication in the case of Multiple Authors

In the case of multiple authors of dissertations or works that form the foundation of doctoral theses, the authors must confirm their agreement to refrain from using such dissertation to form the foundation of another doctoral thesis, as well as consent to the publication of the work as prescribed in Paragraph 3, Article 21 of the Degree Regulations.
